DETAILED ACTION

Restriction/Election Requirement

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. § 121:

I. Claims 1-14, drawn to a method and system for determining an optimal test order for diagnosing mutation involving applying at least one decision tree algorithm, classified in class 702, subclass 19.

II. Claims 15-18, drawn to a method and system for determining an optimal test order for diagnosing mutation involving applying a match pattern, classified in class 702, subclass 19.

The inventions of groups I-II are independent/distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions of groups I and II are directed to related processes. The related inventions are distinct if the inventions as claimed do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants; and the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the methods of group I and II are related because both can be used to determine an optimal test order for diagnosing mutations and sharing such steps as receiving data and creating a database. However they are distinct because they comprise distinct steps as to treating the received data, and produce different results. Group I involves a critical step of treating the received data with at least one decision tree algorithm, which generates strategies from the accessed records and calculates projected cost for the strategies. The result of the method is to score at least a portion of the new data received with the decision tree algorithm and generate a recommendation if the score satisfies a threshold. Group II, however, involves treating the received data by applying a match pattern to the history database created, which match pattern compares the match pattern to each of the accessed records, and calculates the frequency value from the matched records identified by the comparing step. The result of the method is to calculate the frequency value from the matched records identified by the comparing step, and generate a recommendation if a frequency value of matched records located by the match pattern satisfies a match threshold. The steps of applying a decision tree algorithm is distinct from those of applying a match pattern as specified in claim 2 for the former and in claim 16 for the latter. Clearly the methods are mutually exclusive, not obvious variants and have different modes of actions, functions and/or effects.

Because these inventions are independent/distinct for the reasons given above, they have acquired a separate status in the art. Searing both groups together would involve searching all the distinct subject matter including decision tree algorithm and match pattern methods. Thus, there would be a serious search burden if they were examined together. Therefore, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
